A SUNBURST OF BARGAINS

That Will Crowd Our Store Tomorrow!

While you have been bundled up in your furs enjoying the pleasures of winter, we have been working, and planning, and buying for the Grand Spring Opening that takes place tomorrow. Our buyers have scoured every nook and corner of the fashion world-selecting a little here-and a little there-with keen eyes for all that is beautiful, and fashionable, and best. We invite you to pass judgment tomorrow on the result of these months of preparation. We desire particularly that you shall be with us tomorrow, in order that you may view this new stock in all its grandeur and completeness—and to make this occasion a memorable one, we shall spread the cream of these new Spring fancies before you for a SINGLE DAY—at introductory prices that no house in America could continue for any length of time without bringing financial disaster. Tomorrow you will find every one of our fifty departments abloom with the beauties of Eastertide. Dress Goods, Silks, Ribbons, Gloves, Hosiery, Neckwear - EVERYTHING! Be with us tomorrow-whether to look or to buy-we want you to view this magnificent gathering of Spring Goods-the grandest and most complete ever shown by the house of Lansburgh.

The New Spring Dress Goods and Silks

Are a credit to that domineering mistress of the modes, Dame Fashion. To be sure, she has taken some of her ideas from the weaves of former seasons, but she has modified and modernized them, until now they are all of them new and novel. Tomorrow you'll see the stock at its best, and one of the most interesting features will be the special very low prices, of which we herewith give a few hints;

The One Hundred Club of New York gave its annual Mi-Careme dance, which is said to have been more absurdly funny than ever this year. The studio where Mr. Howard Constable and his sister, Miss Anna Constable, make their home, and where the festivities are yearly held. was transformed into a sort of Roman circus, and the "Friends, Romans, and Countrymen" who were present made up procession of soldiers, vestals, matrons and senators, who filed in classic draper ies before the noblest Roman of them all. According to a local report, the process according to a local report, the procession moved to the enlivening modern air.

"Oh, Listen to the Band," played on kazons, and was kept in order by guards in Roman attire. The different personalities were announced by a heraid. There were some attractive turns, and there was a chorus of maids and matrons who saug the music of "Rosie." They were gowned in pale pink, with gariands of popples.
Then the matrons sarg "Six Little Wives" in most solemn fushion. They were dressed in white draperies, with pale blue vells. Mrs. Charles Whelen and Miss Violett Whelen gave a Turn called
"Dido and Aeneas," and Mrs. Francis Prayra headed a set of receful Roman dances that elicited much "aplause. There was, as can be imaginer. ery little inclimation for "turning thumbe down." Incidentally it might be mentioned that Roman punch was a feature of the supper. ion moved to the enlivening modern air,

The repetition of this concert is in the interest of a permanent organization of the members composing the chorus. If sufficient interest is manifested by the public in the movement, it is probable that the organization will be continued Great interest on the part of the members of the chorus is manifested in the proposal to create a permanent organiza among them. Percy S. Foster, directed pointed by the Inauguration Music Cormittee, is the prime mover in the pro-ject, and has interested many of the most prominent people in Washington in musical circles.

At the approaching concert, the music rendered during the Inaugural ceremonies will be repeated, with the possible addition of a few pieces.

The date for the concert has not as yet been arranged definitely, but near Easter has been considered as the most appropriate time for the event. Should it be impossible to hold the concert them, it will probably be made a part of the May festivities. The proceeds will be devoted to some prominent charity.

Convention Hall has been discussed as effering the greatest advantages as the place for the production of the concert. The acousties there are all that could be wished, and the building is adequate in size to accommodate an immense and in size to accommodate an immense au-dience.
